

Headline: NSE to introduce stricter norms for corporate governance

Source: Various newspapers

Date: 22 June 2018

Business Standard

NSE to introduce stricter norms for corporate governance

The National Stock Exchange (NSE) is in the process of introducing a corporate governance code that will be stricter than the existing laws and regulations.

Vikram Limaye, MD & CEO, NSE, said the exchange is in the process of creating incentives for listed corporates that adhere to these norms, which will be voluntary. He was speaking at the NSE-IGIDR conference on corporate governance.

"Companies are expected to sign up for these norms in exchange for improved visibility, higher liquidity and better quality investors," said Limaye.

BS REPORTER

Financial Express

NSE to incentivise cos for corp governance norms

THE NATIONAL STOCK Exchange on Thursday said it is in the process of creating incentives for listed companies to voluntarily adopt corporate governance norms and they are expected to sign up in exchange for improved visibility, higher liquidity and better quality investors. "We are in the process of creating incentives for listed corporates to voluntarily adopt corporate governance norms, which will be defined by NSE," NSE managing director and CEO Vikram Limaye said.